EXPLANATION OF VOTE

The following Explanation of Vote was filed with the Secretary:

In view of the intense public interest exhibited with regard to Senate Joint Resolution No. 1097, I would like to set forth the reason for my position on this Resolution by which a proposed constitutional amendment would be submitted to the people.

First, at the outset, I would like to point out that this Resolution is not a "last resort" measure. As a matter of fact, it contains two fundamental provisions. It authorizes that financial assistance may be provided to private schools and also provides a method for closing and opening of schools.

As originally drawn the Resolution did not provide any means for opening schools. An amendment offered by me was adopted which would provide a method for the opening of any school. Thereby assuring the people of a county that there would be a means to reopen a school if it were ever closed.

I would also like to point out that this Joint Resolution must first be voted on by the people of Florida in order to be adopted as a Constitutional Amendment. After its adoption, a petition of 25% of the qualified electors of a county could petition for an election. Then and only then, would the question of closing or opening a school be voted on.

Therefore, I voted for Senate Joint Resolution No. 1097 so that the entire electorate of Florida might vote on this Constitutional Amendment.

SCOTT KELLY, Senator,
7th District.

Senator Rawls requested unanimous consent of the Senate to take up a message from the House of Representatives.

Unanimous consent was granted.

The Honorable Dewey M. Johnson,
President of the Senate.

Sir:

I am directed by the House of Representatives to inform the Senate that the House of Representatives has adopted—

By Mr. Stone of Escambia—

House Concurrent Resolution No. 2344:

A CONCURRENT RESOLUTION POINTING UP THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE QUADRICENTENNIAL YEAR IN FLORIDA, COMMENDING J. McHENRY JONES FOR HIS LEADERSHIP IN THE QUADRICENTENNIAL CELEBRATION.

WHEREAS, the year of 1959 is truly a significant year in the history of Florida not only for all the citizens of Florida but the nation, since this year marks the quadricentennial anniversary of the first organized landing on August 14, 1559 on Florida's shores when Don Tristan DeLuna of Spain with 1500 troops and 1,000 colonists of men, women and children landed at Pensacola which was the genesis of the establishment of the settlement in the new world, and

WHEREAS, following the colony at Pensacola which persisted for two years and withdrew in the face of famine and storm, St. Augustine was founded in 1565 and persisted to become the first permanent settlement in North America, which settlement was twenty-two years before the lost colony at Roanoke Island, followed by the Jamestown Colony in 1607 and then the landing at Plymouth Rock in 1620, and

WHEREAS, our country's dramatic settlement history with its beginning first along its sea coast and then inland to the far west stems from DeLuna's landing four centuries ago, and

WHEREAS, it is appropriate for the legislature of Florida to pause from its labors and reflect upon and point up with pride the historical significance of our great state and the part played by it in the colonization of the new world, and

WHEREAS, to give proper recognition to the part of our state played in the beginning of our wonderful country a statewide quadricentennial celebration is underway, having had its beginning in Pensacola on May 13, 1959 and Governor Leroy Collins in his remarks at the official opening in commenting on the Quadricentennial said it was, "The most important occasion in the history of Florida", and

WHEREAS, as in all noteworthy occasions and celebrations many people devote much effort, money, talent and time in planning but usually one among the many emerges and stands out because of his leadership, determination, foresight and drive and such a person in the Quadricentennial celebration is J. McHENRY JONES OF PENSACOLA, without whom there would in all probability not have been a beginning of the statewide Quadricentennial celebration, and

WHEREAS, J. McHenry Jones, native of Escambia County, born January 6, 1903, and a prominent attorney of Pensacola, was a member of the committee of ten, which committee was appointed in August of 1954 by the City of Pensacola, the Escambia County Commissioners and the Greater Pensacola Chamber of Commerce, to consider the feasibility of a Quadricentennial celebration in 1959, and to make recommendations as to its nature and scope, and

WHEREAS, on May 24, 1957, there was formed Pensacola's 1959 Quadricentennial Commission, Inc. and J. McHenry Jones was elected its president June 12, 1957, from which time until May 13, 1959, the official opening of the Quadricentennial, a period of twenty-three short months, he has guided the enterprise from a standing start to its present consummation, an exposition occupying eight exhibit buildings on Santa Rosa Island at Pensacola Beach, and a faithful reproduction of the old Spanish town of 1723, and

WHEREAS, In order to finance the early operation J. McHenry Jones invited donations from members of the board of governors of Pensacola's 1959 Quadricentennial Commission, Inc. and secured grants from the City of Pensacola and the Board of County Commissioners of Escambia County; he prepared the necessary legislation to activate the Quadricentennial Commission of Florida; he prepared the necessary legislation to activate the Quadricentennial Commission of Pensacola and served as chairman of both commissions; he organized the Quadricentennial Advisory Committee of the Florida Development Commission and secured the hearty cooperation of its distinguished membership in pursuing the objectives of the committee, and

WHEREAS, Following up a resolution of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce at their annual meeting in December, 1957, to institute a statewide seven year celebration of the colonization of Florida which took place between the years 1559 and 1565, J. McHenry Jones welcomed the offer of the Quadricentennial Commissions of Jacksonville and St. Augustine to join hands in this enterprise, and formed a close working liaison with the officials of those bodies, based on a formal resolution adopted by the three commissions on January 29, 1958, which stated objectives for the seven year celebration, and laid down a program for their accomplishments; and plans for the Quadricentennial and appeared before many civic and official bodies to secure their interest and acceptance; he made a presentation to the governor and cabinet of the State of Florida in June of 1958 securing an appropriation of $50,000.00 drawn from the funds of the Florida Development Commission with their approval to finance the organization and administration of the State Quadricentennial Commission until June 30, 1959 and also to be used in securing material for an historical and international exhibit, and

WHEREAS, In the face of overwhelming odds and many setbacks, with time running out, J. McHenry Jones secured a site for the exhibition from the Santa Rosa Island Authority that the Quadricentennial could have its beginning, and he negotiated the private financing of all necessary buildings and it is notable that all construction took place in three months and three days to meet the date of May 13, 1959, the official opening of the Quadricentennial, and

WHEREAS, J. McHenry Jones arranged with architects and contractors of Pensacola to construct the replica of the old Spanish village of 1723, the third Pensacola settlement, all of whom he arranged to have accept revenue certificates for their work; he arranged with the merchants of Pensacola to furnish all the buildings as a public service; he arranged with foreign governments, particularly Mexico, to loan on a permanent basis, furnishings of an authentic nature for the buildings, and

WHEREAS, J. McHenry Jones personally contacted, in Washington, the State Department, and other departments of the government, and the embassys of Spain, England, France and Mexico, to win their interest and cooperation in the Quadricentennial and his success is attested to by the fact that these foreign governments have contributed priceless documents and artifacts to the historical and international section of the exhibit and Spain has sent artisans to practice their ancient craft in pottery, fabrics and carving in the old Spanish village that has been reproduced, and

WHEREAS, J. McHenry Jones met with the Florida delegation to the Congress in Washington to elicit their aid and support and in 1957 the Congress of the United States recognized, by resolution, the proposed Quadricentennial celebration of the four hundredth anniversary of the landing of Don Tristan DeLuna and his colonists at Pensacola Bay, August 14, 1559, and in the present Congress on May 13, 1959 a joint resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives recognized Florida's seven year Quadricentennial celebration, "in honor of the colonization of Florida by Don Tristan DeLuna who established a colony in Pensacola in 1559.", and

WHEREAS, J. McHenry Jones consulted with historians in the Library of Congress, the Smithsonian Institute, the University of Florida, the several historical societies of the State of Florida, the Cabildo in New Orleans, and with the custodians of historical archives of the Spanish era in our southwest and in Mexico, to obtain authentic data for the historical exhibit; he sent representatives to Spain, France, England and Mexico to gather exhibit material and to enlist the support of these foreign countries in the broad purposes of the Quadricentennial, to-wit: the revival of public interest in the adventurous days of the sixteenth century, when Spain, France and England vied for the control and colonization of the new world along the sea lanes of the Caribbean and the Gulf and the shores of what was then known as "LaFlorida", and

WHEREAS, Whether in the field of legislation, finance, administration, historical research, construction, and promotion, J. McHenry Jones' energies were pointed always toward the objective of an exposition for the Quadricentennial that would bring credit to the entire State of Florida and the nation, and

WHEREAS, J. McHenry Jones is reliably quoted as having said back in 1954, when serving on the committee of ten in the City of Pensacola, that, "If I can devote the next few years to this task of celebrating Florida's great past and her unsung contribution to the colonization of our country, I will consider the effort well spent.", and

WHEREAS, J. McHenry Jones has spent the last few years in devoting himself to the task of the Quadricentennial celebration, having surrounded himself with a small staff of loyal workers of his choice; he enlisted the services of hundreds of men and women who were caught up in his drive and devotion to the task; he drove hard, he never accepted the phrase—"It can't be done.", he treated reversals as a challenge, he never lost sight of the goal, and

WHEREAS, Florida's Quadricentennial celebration will commemorate the great historical events of the genesis of a new nation exposing to the world and focusing international attention on Florida's great strides in industrial, agricultural and recreational development, and

WHEREAS, The significance of the Quadricentennial year of 1959 in Florida should be officially recognized by the representatives of the people of the State of Florida, and an official legislative Quadricentennial Day should be designated at which time J. McHenry Jones' inspiring leadership, and accomplishments should be properly recognized and he should as Chairman of the Quadricentennial Commission of Florida be invited to address a joint session of the houses of the legislature on the Quadricentennial significance, history and benefits which will flow from national and international interest, and

WHEREAS, Recognition of many for their efforts in the Quadricentennial should be given by the legislature of Florida and through an official legislative Quadricentennial Day this can properly be done,

NOW, THEREFORE,
